

Island Peak (6189m)

Introduction

Island Peak (6,189m/20,305ft) lies in the mid-central of the higher Chukhung valley resembling an island standing proud in the sea of ice. There is no doubt that Himalayan peaks have drawn adventurers, climbers and cultural enthusiasts for many decades. Among all the trekking peaks in Nepal, Island peak is the most popular as it is suitable to all novice climbers and experienced trekkers. Which is also well known as Imja Tse. It offers an exhilarating climbing experience beyond simply trekking in Nepal with hike to Everest base camp. Climbing the Island peak, you will stand on a summit of wonderful mountain at 6,189 meters with almost the same unforgettable sense of achievement as you would on the top of mt. Everest.

The Island Peak is the most chosen climbing peak as this peak was training exercise for Edmund Hillary and Tenzing Norgay who were the first climbers of this peak. It is one of the main climbing peaks in the Everest Region of Nepal with an impressive and highly glaciated West Face that rises from the Lhotse Glacier. The Island peak climbing is physically demanding but not technically challenging.
